The "Participant" is an object stored in a coredata managed object in a view controller. I would like to convert the user's "Participant" object to this "Participant" entity object. How can I do this? A: From the top of my head, I think that you might be looking for the +newEntity method of NSManagedObjectContext. This would allow you to convert any instance of NSManagedObjectContext to an instance of NSManagedObjectContext. And then, of course, you could simply call +insertNewObject:inManagedObjectContext: to insert this object back. "I love the book," Rivers said. "The book has a couple of surprise birthdays in it, but it's good." Rivers' the story centers on a man who comes under the spell of an ex-girlfriend. It's also a fictional story about what happens when a former friend becomes a celebrity, as Rivers has in the past. For Rivers, it's all in good fun: "I love this book. I think I might give it to my daughter! I love this book." Rivers spoke at Vanity Fair's screening of a never-before-seen recording of a 2004 show for the American Comedy Awards in Los Angeles. The DVD of the full four-hour show will be released next year and be available for viewing at the ASCAP Fall Songwriters Festival in New York City on October 27. The TV show cast, which included George Carlin and Patrice O'Neal, was noted for its politically driven conversations, which started with a series of monologues from then first lady Laura Bush. But Rivers, who still had plenty to talk about including: "Jay Leno and Barbara Walters have 'woke up,' " and "I'm still stunned by the French Revolution." "Everytime I got off the plane, I went to my 'grocery' and I was shopping for my new confederate hat and black pants," said Rivers. "They were just wearing black pants on the United. If you flew Delta, the whole thing changed because they were wearing blue. I think it was Reagan's fault. I think he wanted to make it hard on the communists. I think he was trying to catch 'em. He was trying to throw them off the scent." Rivers noted how little has changed since she started her comedy career in the early 70's. "I can remember when I was learning how to do comedy and they told me, 'You're gonna have 50b96ab0b6

SygyBrock Lesnar Signs WWE Contract Extension; Could Return to WWE in January - WWE star Brock Lesnar signed a long-term contract extension with WWE. The contract extension will begin in January with Lesnar working the first two shows on January 2-3 live events in New Jersey. From January 4-6, Lesnar will be at the Bankers Life Fieldhouse in Indianapolis, Indiana to take part in WWE's annual Elimination Chamber pay-per-view event. On January 8, Lesnar goes to Buffalo to participate in Backlash. He will then return to WrestleMania season to face Seth Rollins in Orlando. - PWInsider has reported that WWE has a plan in place for AJ Styles and Jinder Mahal to be eliminated from the Royal Rumble. On RAW the following night, there will be a segment with Mahal with Chavo Guerrero as the host. Mahal is the favorite to win the Rumble with Bray Wyatt and Roman Reigns the top two. We also saw a video package with Mahal's time during the 2014 King of the Ring tournament that had him lose a squash match to Cena. – On Twitter, wrestling author Jim Cornette said that WWE also told him Lesnar is going to WrestleMania 31 as the main event. v. City of Tucson, 230 Ariz. 533, 5
